APPENDIX - TEAM BIOS

Naji Boustany is our operational whiz and executive chef. In addition to running Epicure, Naji is an executive director at Island Grown Initiative, an island food equity non-profit. With a Masters Degree in Operations and Supply Chain Management and 20+ years of scaling food and beverage operations, Naji will be our fearless leader as we embark on this Catboat journey.

Morgen Schroeder is our social media maven and professional hype-gal. In addition to running Martha's Vineyard Cheesery, Morgen will lead Catboat's social media presence and marketing efforts. An engineer turned business consultant turned technology customer success manager, Morgen brings 10+ years of business experience and organization to the Catboat team.

Alex Ficarelli-Danberg is our multi-tool. He has gone from bookkeeping to slinging manousheh (with Naji in NYC!) to woodworking at island favorite Chappaquiddick Wood Company. In addition to being our conduit to the island artisan scene, Alex has a strong working knowledge of Catboat's core menu items.

Meredith Danberg-Ficarelli is our resident waste expert and sustainability brain trust. Meredith is CEO at WATS (Waste Administration + Tracking Software), and she will use that experience to guide Catboat's initiatives related to waste reduction, composting, and reusables. Additionally, Meredith sits on the Island-Wide Organics Waste Management Committee.

Andrew Danberg-Ficarelli is our resident catboat nerd. The only member of our team that is not island-based (maybe someday!), Andrew is a Pediatric Dentist by day and a maritime lore aficionado by night. His wealth of nautical ~~nonsense~~ knowledge will help keep the Catboat brand on course!
